In brief:

Patricia Levinson was born in South Africa and has a degree in biochemistry and an MBA. She spent 4 years in Israel with her husband Lionel (living there through the Six-day war) and immediately on arriving in the US in 1970 joined and became active in Hadassah where she has served on the Board of Directors for 28 years. During that time, she started a National program for Women's Health Education and a program on the promise of Stem Cells. Patricia has worked with Hadassah International running their Communications since 2004. She also brought up a family, taught at the Hebrew school and had a small business restoring Historical buildings and managing them as apartments.

Her talk will surely be an inspiration to us all.
